The IBM Bluemix Garage is exactly that: a garage environment that fosters unbridled innovation between startups and enterprises, with IBM Bluemix as the centerpiece that makes it all possible.

To view the introductory video Pull into the IBM Bluemix Garage please access the online version of the article.

It’s no accident that some of the most innovative and influential technology discoveries from recent decades came out of garages.

To leverage, continue, and foster the flexibility and culture of the garage development concept, IBM has created the IBM® Bluemix™ Garage, a (physical) place where startups and enterprises can come together to innovate in the cloud.

Rachel Reinitz, IBM Distinguished Engineer and Founder & CTO of the Bluemix Garage, describes the amazing growth of the original San Francisco garage, the off-shoots it has produced, and the exciting, ongoing journey ahead.

“Being in these communities really helps us to promote the relationship between startups and enterprises so that they can learn from each other.”

Now open for business -- possibly even in a city near you -- make a stop in the garage and tune up your level of innovation.

RELATED TOPICS: Bluemix Cloud Enterprise
About the author

Rachel Reinitz

@rreinitz on Twitter

© Copyright IBM Corporation 2015

Trademarks
(www.ibm.com/developerworks.ibm/trademarks/)