At a glance

The new IBM[®] Media Destruction Services is globally consistent and priced simply, regardless of the user's technology and configuration. With the new service, IBM combines its world-renowned reputation with an enhanced customer experience and improved ease of use. Clients can quickly assess the value of the offering in protecting sensitive data.

Overview

IBM Media Destruction Services is a trackable end-to-end solution that will reduce the possibility of data breaches and help avoid financial and reputational costs. It can help you comply with new legislation such as GDPR as well as with existing regulations related to consumer data. With this tool, IBM will support clients in their efforts to be compliant and to protect their reputation, as any data breach can significantly decrease company reputation and result in large fines, and might lead to loss of partners.

IBM Media Destruction Services provides for wiping, degaussing, or shredding of media, with options for hard disk drives, solid-state drives, flash drives, tapes, optical disks, and memory sticks.
