At a glance

IBM[®] QRadar[®] Watson[™] Advisor extends cognitive analytics to the IBM Security QRadar platform, helping to deliver the following benefits:

- Respond to threats with confidence, at unprecedented speed and scale
- Help significantly reduce threat triage, investigation, and response time
- Rapidly interpret structured and unstructured data, extract relationships, and evaluate supporting evidence with full context, providing recommended actions and improved decision making
- Gain deeper insights by ingesting and understanding extensive data sources, including human generated data (for example, blogs, websites, research papers)
- Bring new insights to the investigation process, automating the tedious tasks of searching the internet and uncovering hidden threats

Overview

QRadar Watson Advisor, a new cognitive app that extends cognitive analytics to the Security QRadar platform, helps security analysts rapidly investigate and respond to threats. It leverages Watson for Cyber Security's corpus of knowledge, tapping into unstructured data (including security websites, blogs, research papers, among others) and correlating with local security incidents. All of this helps to uncover hidden threats and automate insights for faster response and improved decision making.

The app enables a security analyst to send a security offense to Watson to perform threat discovery, using its knowledge base of hundreds of thousands of unstructured and structured data sources and mapping that back to threat entities related to the original security offense, such as malicious files, suspicious IP addresses, rogue entities, and the relationships between them. This is particularly valuable in determining whether or not a security offense is associated with a known malware campaign. If so, Watson provides background on the malware employed, vulnerabilities exploited, and scope of the threat (including additional impacted endpoints), among other insights.

Software requirements

Information about software requirements is available in IBM Knowledge Center.

The program's specifications and specified operating environment information may be found in documentation accompanying the program, if available, such as a readme file, or other information published by IBM, such as an announcement letter. Documentation and other program content may be supplied only in the English language.

Such information is provided subject to the following terms. IT system security involves protecting systems and information through prevention, detection, and response to improper access from within and outside your enterprise. Improper access can result in information being altered, destroyed, misappropriated, or misused, or can result in damage to or misuse of your systems, including for use in attacks on others. No IT system or product should be considered completely secure and no single product, service, or security measure can be completely effective in preventing improper use or access. IBM systems, products, and services are designed to be part of a lawful, comprehensive security approach, which will necessarily involve additional operational procedures, and may require other systems, products, or services to be most effective.

Important: IBM does not warrant that any systems, products, or services are immune from, or will make your enterprise immune from, the malicious or illegal conduct of any party.

Charge metric

Events per second

Events Per Second is a unit of measure by which the IBM Cloud Service can be obtained. An Event is an occurrence of a specific event that is processed by or related to the use of the IBM Cloud Service. Sufficient entitlements must be obtained to cover the number of Events per second that occurs during the measurement period specified in Client's Proof of Entitlement (PoE) or Transaction Document.

Resource Value Unit (RVU)

RVU is a unit of measure by which the program can be licensed. RVU PoEs are based on the number of units of a specific resource used or managed by the program. Licensee must obtain sufficient entitlements for the number of RVUs required for licensee's environment for the specific resources as specified in the program specific table. RVU entitlements are specific to the program and the type of resource and may not be exchanged, interchanged, or aggregated with RVU entitlements of another program or resource. Refer to the program specific RVU table.

Notes:

- Some programs may require licenses for the resources available to and the resources being managed by the program. In that case, the following applies. In addition to the entitlements required for the resources used by the program directly, licensee must obtain entitlements for this program sufficient to cover the resources managed by the program.
- Some programs may be licensed on a managed basis only. In that case, the following applies. Instead of the entitlements required for the resources used by the program directly, licensee must obtain entitlements for this program sufficient to cover the resources managed by the program.

Statement of good security practices

IT system security involves protecting systems and information through prevention, detection, and response to improper access from within and outside your enterprise. Improper access can result in information being altered, destroyed, or misappropriated or can result in misuse of your systems to attack others. Without a comprehensive approach to security, no IT system or product should be considered completely secure and no single product or security measure can be completely effective in preventing improper access. IBM systems and products are designed to be part of a lawful, comprehensive security approach, which will necessarily involve additional operational procedures, and may require other systems, products, or services to be most effective.

Important: IBM does not warrant that any systems, products, or services are immune from, or will make your enterprise immune from, the malicious or illegal conduct of any party.
