

Why should you consider BAO consulting at IBM?

Share in our storied existence

At IBM, you have the opportunity to be part of a legendary company. As a consultant in IBM Global Business Services, our clients rely on our proven track record and history of success.

We've developed and implemented successful strategies within our own corporation in addition to a wide range of businesses in various industries and markets spanning the globe. If there's a business problem out there, we've probably seen it – and tackled it. No matter the size or scope of the problem, we've got the resources to address it. In the Business Analytics and Optimization practice, Senior Consultants will be given the opportunity to combine sophisticated analytics with market-leading global solutions, deep industry insight and business consulting expertise, working with a diverse set of clients to deliver an actionable plan.

Partner with our clients

We can bring a distinctive set of capabilities to bear, utilizing our resources across IBM, so you'll get the chance to partner with clients and turn strategic plans into a reality. Our ability to combine creativity, analytics and technical know-how is the benefit of working at IBM – our resources across the organization are unmatched.

Smarter decisions for optimized performance
We cross industries and business functions, working, learning and innovating in tandem with a large team of experts across IBM Global Business Services. We lead the way into the future with new methods, new deployment models, insights into emerging technologies and business trends that help provide that competitive edge.
