Warranty and Disclaimer

When the IBM Watson Health databases are referred to in newsletters, publicity, or promotional items, trademark and copyright protections should be used. A "trademark" designates any word, name, symbol, or device adopted and used by a manufacturer to identify goods and distinguish them from those of other manufacturers. Trademarks should be used consistently as adjectives and printed in a manner that will distinguish them from the surrounding text. IBM Watson Health trademarks MUST appear as indicated on the following screen with special attention to capitalization and hyphenation. The symbols ®, ™, and SM are a form of notice and must be used in conjunction with the trademarks.

IBM Micromedex® Reproductive Effects Disclaimer

IBM Micromedex® Reproductive Effects System contains information on the acute and chronic clinical, carcinogenic, genetic, and reproductive effects of chemicals and physical agents. Each chemical has a dual hazard rating, one for general toxicity and another for reproductive hazard. All ratings are guidelines, not rigid rules. Certain individuals may be more or less sensitive to any chemical or may react in ways not previously known. No warranty or representation is made that all known health effects have been identified for any substance. Although the information in the IBM Micromedex® Reproductive Effects is believed to be accurate, NO REPRESENTATION OR WARRANTY, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION ANY WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY OR OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE WHATSOEVER IS MADE TO THIS EFFECT.
