Future of Public Services AR (Augmented Reality) Wall Toolkit
An augmented reality wall showing the Future of Public Services through the eyes of the next generation IBM’s Millennials provided insights on how citizens expect to access public services in 2020. These insights are displayed on the following website:
The augmented reality wall helps to bring to life the content from the website. Customers use iPads to interact with trigger points to display relevant information. They may then email content to themselves for future reading.