IBM's longstanding, global commitment to corporate responsibility is a demonstration of our values and the priorities that guide them. By integrating corporate responsibility with business strategy, we contribute to the communities in which we do business while engaging our clients, partners and employees. IBM’s technology and talent have the power to help transform governments, institutions, communities and the quality of life for people around the world. Whether it's improving education, revitalizing cities, protecting the environment or driving economic growth, IBM and IBMers contribute innovative solutions to the world’s toughest societal challenges.

“To build a smarter planet — and to run a smarter enterprise — your business and citizenship strategies must be more than aligned. They must become one. This is very different from traditional notions of ‘giving back’ or CSR. Speaking as an IBMer, I believe this comes from the core of our culture, values and purpose as an enterprise — to be essential to our clients and to the world,” says IBM Chairman, President and CEO Ginni Rometty.

Education

In 2014, IBM unveiled Codename: Watson Teacher Advisor, an advanced cognitive computing system that will provide qualified lesson plans and mentoring to teachers via mobile devices — all free of charge. In the United States, IBM’s innovative P-TECH grades 9 to 14 model connects education to jobs. In the 2014-15 school year, P-TECH’s first six graduates finished high school and college in just four years, as the P-TECH network expanded to 27 schools across three states.
Problem solving
IBM Impact Grants bring sophisticated capabilities to nonprofit organizations to help them serve their constituencies more effectively. Since the program's launch in Venezuela in 2013, IBM has made grants to more than 10 educational and not-for-profit organizations.

IBM Venezuela has developed an innovative project with United Way Venezuela (Dividendo Voluntario para la Comunidad) to help them to enhance their IT infrastructure, as well as their leadership and technology skills.

Worldwide, 100 Corporate Service Corps teams worked in 2014 on pro bono consulting projects to improve women's health, preserve the environment, and more. Sixteen cities benefitted from Smarter Cities Challenge® engagements. World Community Grid® helped strengthen the fights against cancer and Ebola by providing free “virtual supercomputing” power to humanitarian researchers.

Employee engagement
Nearly 270,000 active and retired IBMers have donated nearly 18 million hours of volunteer service through IBM's On Demand Community®, and IBM's Volunteer Excellence awards bestow CEO-level recognition on those employees who, through their actions, best personify IBM's culture of service. In 2015, IBM volunteers in Venezuela provided several training sessions on project management skills to more than 100 young lecturers and professors from Universidad Simon Bolivar.

Corporate responsibility
IBM pursues the highest standards of corporate responsibility, from how we support and empower our employees, to how we work with clients and govern the corporation.

• Environment — IBM’s comprehensive programs range from energy and climate protection to pollution prevention, chemical and waste management, resource conservation, and product design for the environment.

• Supply Chain — IBM buys from suppliers from nearly 100 countries and has infused social and environmental responsibility into the fabric of our business relationships.

• Governance — Our corporate culture is firmly based on ethics and integrity, guided by a rigorous system of corporate governance.
